What is a Learning Path?

Last Modified on 06/20/2025 11:19 am EDT

This article explains what Learning Paths are in Big Think+ and how to use them to build a focused set of leadership or business skills over time.

A Learning Path is an organized series of Video Lessons that guide you through a topic. Each Learning Path is built around a key leadership or business capability — like communication, hiring, or innovation — and brings together insights from multiple experts to help you build mastery over time.

What will I see on a Learning Path page?

Each Learning Path includes:

- A title that provides a brief introduction to the topic
- A list of Learning Objectives to set your focus
- A lineup of expert-led video lessons from multiple speakers
    - Each video lesson tile shows the title, expert, duration, and completion progress
- Options to add the learning path to a curation or share a direct link to the full path

How can I make the most of a Learning Path?

- Start from the top and move through lessons in the suggested order

- Start from the top and move through lessons in the suggested order
- Review the Learning Objectives to keep your focus aligned with the overall goal
- Watch and reflect, taking notes on Video Lesson pages as you go
- Revisit the path when you want a refresher or to share with a teammate

When should I use a Learning Path?

Learning Paths are ideal when you:

- Want to develop a full capability, not just learn an isolated concept
- Prefer structured content organized by skill
- Enjoy learning from a range of expert perspectives